exception. If she can do churidar without ruffling her pleats, and wrap six yards of fabric, then you know what she is capable of.

Craftsmanship means more than technical virtuosity. It is not only a profound understanding of materials, and of the tools with which materials are fashioned, but must also finally culminate in genuine pride which drives an individual in craft and weave as well as can be done, beyond what is required, beyond economic considerations of reward. An excellent example of such craftsmanship is Saree weaved by us.
